JOHN PUPILS AT THE ACADEMY

Tuition for the Three Terms Will be Paid Commencing Monday by Town Treasurer Holbrook—Receipts Must be Shown.

Last fall it was voted in town meeting that the town should pay the tuition of the pupils of the town at the Norwich Free Academy and a sum not to exceed $2,500 was appropriated for that purpose. It was necessary later to hold a special meeting on the matter, inasmuch as the town officials and the Academy authorities could not reach an agreement in regard to the payment of the tuition. It was then decided that the Academy it would be paid to the parents or guardians of the pupils when receipts were presented to the town treasurer, Charles S. Holbrook, on or after May 15, showing that the tuition had been paid by the parents or guardians for each term for the resident pupils.

The instruction of the special town meeting was that the treasurer should pay to the parents or guardians $15 for each term for the resident pupils.

SPECIAL MENTION FOR OTHER NORWICH PUPILS.

Two in Broadway and Two in Mt. Pleasant Street School Receive Notification.

In addition to the prize of $10 in gold, awarded by the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames to Miss Fannie Wilkins of the Ninth grade, Broadway school, for her essay on "Colonial Days," the committee of the same grade, Miss Irene Everett of the same grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Everett, is likewise awarded a prize of $10 in gold for her essay on the same subject, but regretting that, as it exceeded the limit, it could not be considered for a prize.

An honor certificate has also been received by Miss Clara S. Germain of the same grade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Johnson, 12 Williams street, for her essay on "The Redeemed Captive of Deerfield."

At the Mt. Pleasant street school of the West Chelsea district Miss Mary Connelley of Miss Clara S. Germain both received notification that they received special mention for their essays in the grammar school contest. Both are members of the ninth grade.

ANOTHER INMATE OF NORWICH BAWDY HOUSE.

Clara St. Germain Gave Up Her Earnings—Jury Gives Her a Verdict.

A detailed story of ten years of shame, after which came the realization that she was committing wrong and the coming of a desire to reform, formed the theme of Clara St. Germain's story, which she read before a jury and Judge Gardner Greene in the additional April session of the superior court at Hartford.

The complaint recited that prior to November 23, 1910, Miss St. Germain at 11 J. Peter Connelley or Peter Connelley, gave $1,000 in sums ranging from $150 to $1,000, with the understanding that he deposit it for the plaintiff, who is unable to read or write.

The plaintiff was the first witness. She gave her residence as 83 Grove street, Hartford.

She gave Connelley money each evening when she came home, during the year 1910. She took the money, she testified, with the understanding that it was to be deposited in a Pratt street bank. She said that she had been in St. Francis hospital and when she came out she asked Connelley for the money, and he refused to give it to her. She had seen him bank his money, and although she made figures was unable to read. A slip of paper containing the different amounts which the defendant was introduced in evidence.

On cross examination by Mr. Dwyer, Miss St. Germain admitted that she had met Connelley at a house of ill repute in New London in 1901. She had lived at home in New Bedford before he came to her, and at that time she lived in New London. Later Connelley took her to a Norwich house kept by Joseph Emme. She said that she lived there for four years. She was known as Mabel Cahill and was once arrested under that name. She admitted that she used to get "pinned" once a year and the "boss" paid the fines.

During four years in Norwich, during which time Connelley visited her twice a week, she went to Unionville. Later she went to a house on Prof. Street in Hartford. Connelley then took her to Unionville, where he and his father lived. She said that she had two and a half boarders there. She said that she was known to the neighbors as Connelley's cousin.

Because Connelley's father was out of a job she said she went back to "Nell" Wallace's resort in Norwich. Connelley went after her and took her to a flat in Front street. She said she supported him by going to houses of ill repute. She said that she had been to lead this life. From time to time she had visited Peter Murray's resort in Unionville, she said, of continued changes in Hartford and of her manner of living in order to make a living for both of them.

Connelley came back to Hartford and entered St. Francis hospital. On coming out she refused to enter the old life.

At the hospital she learned from the sisters and a priest to realize that the life she was leading was bad.

The case went to the jury Thursday and they brought in a verdict to recover the amount of the claim.

Lively Runaway.

On Thursday morning a farmer's horse was frightened in Durkee lane and dashed out into Franklin street and collided with a pole. This frightened a horse attached to a baker's wagon, and the latter started for Franklin square, colliding with another wagon and pulling it away from the horse and in the square the two wagons and a car were scattered about. Several secured an extra lunch from the scattered victuals.
